Biography

Alanna Pitch

Biographical Information

Born	1267
Birthplace	Kovir
Status	Dead

Origins

Alanna's origins are complicated. She was born in a Koviri forest that served as a link between The Continent and another world that collided during The Conjunction of the Spheres. It is not known for certain which one, but it is thought likely to have been a version of Earth at some point in the 10th century, more specifically, to the region of Scotland.

Fruit of the love between a knight of Kaedwen and a witch / druid from another world called Eelyn. The two fell in love, married and moved in together and sooner rather than later, Eelyn would become pregnant with future daughter Alanna.

But that dream life would come to an end. Since, the religious of the village where they lived, discovered that she was a "witch". and they wanted to kill her for it. Luckily, thanks to a vision she had the night before, the coming from another world, she was able to escape and march back into the same forest that allowed her to find her husband, by joining two different spheres.

But the nature of the forest was changeable, and he could not return home. Forcing her to build a hut where she would give birth to her daughter and raise her. When Alanna was 13 years old, her mother would die, under unknown circumstances. Probably due to the unstable spatio-temporal nature of the forest, leaving her alone, until 5 years later, when she would meet Putnam Pitch by accident.

Although at some point in those 5 years, she seemed to somehow meet the local druids, who would later leave the forest for unknown reasons.

Marriage with Putnam (1285 - 1286)

After returning from his expedition to the east, Putnam would meet in the forests of Kovir, a young girl of about 18 years of age, who had been abandoned by the druids, which lived in the forest where Putnam was making a contract to kill a werewolf.

Putnam would accomplish his goal, but during the process, he would damage his foot, which forced him to stay with the girl for a time while he recovered. During that time, they would both fall in love and a relationship emerged. Putnam even went so far as to train her in sword combat, which would influence the fate of the girl later on.

This relationship progressed quite quickly, so much so that within a few months, both were married. But just as quickly it arose, quickly it ended. Since Alanna after learning that the witches were infertile, she abandoned her husband after he could not give her children.

Reencounter with Alanna (1290)

In 1290, Putnam and she would meet again, but by that time, Alanna had already become a perfect knight. After her next husband tried to abuse her and also didn't give her children. Alanna decided to leave him and return to Putnam. Alanna, who had changed much since the last time Putnam had seen her, had become a woman of great beauty and perfection. According to Fabiolan legends, during their reunion, apart from having an intimate encounter, Putnam would rescue Alanna from being burned as a witch, a false accusation that was made against her by her former husband an alleged spy of the Church of Eternal Fire.
